How to Obtain Best Results with this Fountain Pen

This pen is unsurpassed in writing quality by any fountain pen made. The only precautions necessary to keep this pen in first class writing condition are to use good fountain pen ink, which can be bought from any stationer and to keep pen point covered by cap when not in use. Common ink will clog the feed channel in a pen in a few days. Good ink will dry up and clog the feed if cap is not screwed down over pen when not in use. If pen becomes clogged it can be cleaned out by dipping the pen section in water and working the lever up and down about ten times. This draws the water in and squirts it out cleaning the feed channel. If pen drops ink when writing it is a warning signal that it is nearly empty and needs refilling. If through a sudden jar, ink is ejected into the cap, the pen section will also become inky and soil the writer's fingers. In this event it will be necessary to dry out the pen section and the inside of cap with a piece of blotting paper rolled up to reach inside of cap. If ink is allowed to remain inside cap it will draw more ink from pen section and your pen will always be dirty. If after observing these precautions your pen does not work perfectly it may be returned to us.
